CHRIST CLEANSES THE TEMPLE

Only once in His life did Christ show anger. Matthew tells the story in two dramatic paragraphs:

"And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves.

"And said unto them, It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves." (Matthew XXI:12-13)

Note to State On Route 62

An important forward step was taken Tuesday when Chamber of Commerce officials of Salem and Alliance united to form a common front to press for the much-needed improvement of U.S. Route

We hope that the Ohio Department of Highways takes note of this.

Heretofore, action by the two neighboring communities has been, at times, in opposition with regard to the oft-discussed, but never acted upon, proposed Route 62 relocation.

IT IS NOW a matter of record that both Alliance and Salem want the state to take early action on improving Route 62 in this area and favor the northerly path proposed for the relocation by the State Highway Department. As projected, it would stay close to Alliance, Sebring, and Salem, and connect with State Route 11 (lakes to river road) northeast of Washingtonville when that north-south freeway finally cuts through Columbiana County.

The new Route 62 is needed badly. Heavy vehicular traffic is clogging the present inadequate highway in the Salem-Alliance district, the scene of frequent traf-cities. Prospects for industrial as well as suburban residential growth to the north are encouraging.

The Alliance - Salem recommendation and endorsement of the state's own plans ought to be the signal for State Highway Director P. E. Masheter and his aides to give some early, serious attention to the Route 62 project.

SALEM IS ESPECIALLY interested in the highway section to be constructed to our immediate north and we see no reason for any delays in getting that job advertised for contract letting. If the section from Route 44 east of Canton to near Alliance is to be started by 1966-67, it will be years before the Salem "bypass" is built unless we can convince the state that the votes of the good people in this eastern Ohio district are just as important, for example, on $550 million road programs as those of Ohioans in some isolated areas where there doesn't seem to be justification for the big road improvements that were carried out.

It will be interesting to watch for the Highway Department's reaction to Salem and Alliance's display of unanimity on rulings, most recently its ruling this week on a Georgia case, legislative districts for the House of Representatives will be made as equal as possible.

The fact will remain that some districts will be more equal than others, and the probability will persist that the Supreme Court and all the lower courts together will be unable to do anything about it.

The three branches of government themselves are supposed to be equal, but the fact is the legislative branch holds the purse. That makes it more equal than the executive branch and the judicial

THAT IS deplorable but true. It's also deplorable but true that sparsely populated districts in some states have one vote apiece in the House of Representatives and thickly populated districts elsewhere have just one vote, too.

It's deplorable that some districts in Southern states are apportioned according to population, yet only the white population is permitted to vote.

It's deplorable that in big-city districts hundreds of thousands of voters are herded around by political bosses as if they

> Everything about unequal representation in the House of Representatives is deplorable, including the fact avicious seniority system puts inordinate power over public affairs into the hands of a coterie of committee chairmen who spend their entire lifetimes exercising the power of czars over public affairs.

> It's enough to make a jurist weep. It's enough to make an advocate of representative democracy throw in his tattered copy of the Constitution.

> NATURALLY, everybody will strive to correct inequities.

> Everything will be made as shipshape as possible, in accordance with the spirit of the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling. But the fact is the solution lies in the domain of legislative authority, where the problem lies-where the problem originates.

The prospect for jiggidy-jig compliance with an order for equal representation as bright as the prospect for an acrossthe board reduction of legislative salaries. Don't wait with bated breath.

During the

the serenaded state dinner for the British leader and the beginning of the ball on that night of Feb. 13, Sir Alec Douglas-Home found himself along side Alex Rose, a man of two hats. Mr. Rose is both the political voice of the liberal abor movement and president of the Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers Union. He was one of three labor chiefs invited by his friend President Johnson to the state dinner honoring the British chief of state. "We want you to feel happy here tonight," Rose told the prime minister jovially, "because we don't know what our boys in the British trade union movement will do to you during your coming election

The prime minister was undisturbed. He looked genially and calmly at Rose, who by this time had been joined by Jack Conway, an intimate of Walter Reuther and head of the six-million member AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department.

"I most certainly am having a fine time tonight," said Sir Alec, who will be running for re-election at almost exactly the same time as Lyndon Johnson.

THE DIFFERENCE is that Mr. Douglas-Home is heading for a knockdown fight with the British counterpart of America's militant liberal unions, while the Texan is heading for a political love affair with U.S.

Thus the leaders of two powerful nations will be made or broken by politicalized unionism in the next seven or eight months. Should labor win in both nations, it will become a powerful international, as well as national, force, indeed.

President Johnson's new intimate relationship with militant labor was symbolized by names on the guest list for the banquet. Mr. Rose, who is the most frequent spokesman for the hard-hitting Liberal party of New York State was the only political figure there among the statesmen and artists and writers, such as Julie Andrews, Albert Finney, John Steinbeck and comic Milton Berle.

At the banquet itself in the State Room, to which 130 celebrities were invited, there were only two other union chiefs: Al Hayes, head of the huge 900,000member Machinists Association and Herman Kenin, leader of the Musicians' Federation. Kenin rejoiced-during the dessert there was practically one violinist for every table.

AFTER THE DINNER another 200 personages were asked to join in a dance in the East Room. Among those were two union leaders-Jack Conway, of whom this nation will hear much, and his friend Victor Reuther, brother of Walter.

During the festivities President Johnson mentioned the next morning's schedule to Mr. Rose. They met in his Oval Room office at 10:30 Friday Feb. 14) and talked politics and economics for almost 40 minutes despite the clogging of the President's desk during the two days he spent with Sir Alec on international affairs.

The two men spoke of Texas hats. The President said that ladies' millinery was always on Mrs. John'son's mind-but no one should underestimate the political importance of the rest of their conversation.

The New York Liberal party can deliver 400,000 votes in the big state. It provided John Kennedy with the needed margin to beat Dick Nixon. Some of its leaders, such as political pioneer David Dubinsky, chief of tht 450,000-member International Ladies Garment Workers Union, influence local unions and politics throughout the entire industrial Northeast from Pennsylvania to New England.

THE LIBERAL PARTY image is considered important to Mr. Johnson in the big cities. It is the label John Kennedy sought in a series of prenomination and election campaign breakfast conferences organized for him by Arthur Goldberg in '60. The Liberal party membership covers the Furriers, the Needle Trades, the Retail Clerks, the Shoe Workers, the Pulp and Sulphide Workers, the Pocketbook Workers, the International Union of Electrical Workers led by Jim Carey, and Mr. Reuther's Auto Workers, to mention just a few.

It's significant that Rose pledged the Democratic leader the support of the liberals and militant unions in the "cam-Rose also is reported to have said that this meant that liberal and labor communities in many parts of the land would be very active in Mr. Johnson's cam-

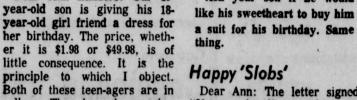

They reminisced about Harry Truman's 1948 campaign and the fact that it was the Liberal party which gave him a huge wind-up Madison Square Garden rally. This same party put almost half a million people in the street for John Kennedy and turned the tide for him in New York State. Pledges for similar support were made by Mr. Johnson's guest.

AND THERE was talk of Sargent Shriver, who was mentioned by Rose when he met newsmen on his way out of the Oval Room, Rose is too astute a political scientist not to realize the implications of a name mentioned right after a political talk with the President.

To many observers it appeared to be a message saying that the liberals would take Shriver as a vice presidential candidate.

Perhaps it is too early for such conjecture. But perhaps it is not political history, it seems to me, was made that morning.

When my husband comes home at night he can drop his hat and shoes wherever he wants to. I don't care if he tracks in a little snow or mud. The house is to live in and I want him to enjoy it.

Law of the Court

By DAVID LAWRENCE The Supreme Court of the United States can certainly throw a monkey wrench into the machinery. Within the last two days, the country has been told by one of justices that almost all of the members of the present House of Repr es entatives may have been elected David Lawrence illegally and that this is what the latest Supreme Court opinion Just what does this do to the validity of the legislation passed by this Congress? And what about the acts of previous Congresses which were elected the very same way that the Supreme Court now denounces? The nation again has been given an example of the almost incredible power which the Supreme Court of the United States assumes to exercise over the other branches of the government merely by the use of what is called "judicial interpretation."

For many decades, whenever a fundamental change in the existing system was deemed necessary by the people, they adopted an amendment to the Constitution in the manner prescribed in that document. But his course isn't being followed

Justice John M. Harlan explained-more clearly than any layman could—the meaning of the 6-3 decision rendered by the court this week on the subject of reapportionment of congressional districts. In his minority opinion, he said: "I had not expected to witness the day when the Supreme Court of the United States would render a decision which casts grave doubt on the constitutionality of the composition of the House of Representatives. It's an exaggeration to say that such is the effect of today's decision. The court's holding that the Constitution requires states to select representatives either by elections at large or by elections in districts composed 'as nearly as practicable' of equal population places in jeopardy the seats of almost all of the members of the present House of Representatives."

JUSTICE HARLAN pointed out that in the last congressional election in 1962, representatives from 42 states were tricts and that in all but five of those states there was a sizeable inequality in the population of the districts. He then added:

"Thus, today's decision impugns the validity of the election of 398 representatives from 37 states, leaving a 'constitutional' house of 37 members now sitting." There are many arguments in favor of changing the systems of representation in Congress so that a state's population will be equitably divided into districts for picking members of the House of Representatives. But the real question today is not whether the districting system that has been used by any state is inequitable, but whether the Supreme Court shall prescribe the method of change.

Justice Harlan called attention to the simple wording of the Constitution itself, which

"The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives, shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators."

JUSTICE HARLAN declared that "there is nothing to indicate any limitation whatsoever on this grant of plenary initial and supervisory power," and that the power thus granted by the Constitution to Congress and the states is exclusive.

Justice Hugo Black, who wrote the majority opinion, based his argument almost entirely on the wording of another section of the same article in the Constitution, which says that the representatives shall be chosen "by the people of the several states." There is no dispute, however, about the right of the people to vote for members of Congress. The controversy arises over the method by which a state apportions its population into districts for the election of its representatives in Congress.

For decades, the Supreme Court steered away from any decision on this because it regarded it as a "political" ques-tion. This, incidentally, has been given by the Supreme Court for nearly 100 years as its reason for refusing to rule whether the 14th Amendment was fraudulently ratified, PLAINLY, there are defects in the present system of establishing congressional districts, but this ought to be remedied by constitutional amendment, which should clearly set forth a basis on which apportionment shall be made in order to prevent inequities. Justice Harlan

"The Constitution does not confer on the court blanket authority to step into every situation where the political branch may be thought to have fallen short. The stability of this institution ultimately depends not only upon its being alert to keep the other branches of government within constitutional bounds but equally upon recognition of the limitations on the court's own functions in the constitutional system. . . .

"By yielding to the demand instance, the court in my view does a disservice both to itself and to the broader values of our system of government."

No such sweeping indictment of the usurpation of power by the Supreme Court has been rendered by any justice in recent years. The principle that the Constitution can be amended only in the manner prescribed in that document itself has been brushed aside many times by the present Supreme Court.

Never has it gone so far, however, as to issue a decision the effect of which, in the words of Justice Harlan, "is to declare constitutionally defective the very composition of a coordinate branch of the federal government.

4-H Clubs

Nineteen members of the Fa shionettes 4-H Club met recently at Franklin School in Summitville. Roll call was answered by naming "foods contributing to good health."

Plans were made during the business meeting to join the "Sisters Club," a group of 4-H girls who exchange patterns and recipes. The group also discussed the booth and float to be displayed at the County Fair in the fall.

Basketball provided the recreation.

assist from special winter driving paraphernalia. Reassuring to know this time of year-and also in the months to come when all that tidy white countryside turns into a melting pot that's likely to add to the misery. Another thing about Corvair's engine: It's bigger this year. Nearly 19 per cent more power in the standard version. Which is something you'll appreciate most any time of year, fair weather or foul.

You'll also appreciate not having to fool around with antifreeze. And not having to flush the radiator or fuss with hose connections.

The engine's air cooled. Matter of fact, we have a feeling that if more people knew what a cinch Corvair makes winter driving, there wouldn't be quite so many looking for excuses to duck South this time every year.

But then you never know. Corvair's a real kick to drive in warm weather, too. Why not just try one at your dealer's and decide for yourself?

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

A word from THERON at the Country Store

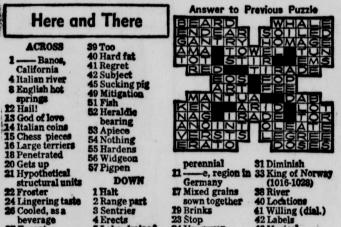

This coming Saturday, as you all know is George Washington's birthday. George was a real good president, he had great plans for our country and lived to see a lot of them come about.

If all our presidents and other political figures were as interested in the future of our land as he was I am sure we would be in even better shape than we are today.

Every one who is having a birthday on Feb. 22 is invited here to the Country Store for a free coffee and a piece of our delicious cherry pie. This offer is for this Saturday only.
